

IMPACT COMMUNITY CAPITAL NAMES PAUL HWANG AS INVESTMENT ANALYST.

San Francisco, CA (August, 2018) – Impact Community Capital (ICC) has announced a new appointment to its team: Paul Hwang, Investment Analyst.

With IMPACT, Paul will have responsibility for structuring and evaluating investment funds in IMPACT's purpose-driven investment programs. Among his roles will be to develop financial models and provide market research supporting the implementation of IMPACT's five-year growth plan.

Prior to joining IMPACT, Paul spent 11 years in investment management, including six years at AllianceBernstein, acting as product manager and portfolio manager.

Established in 1998, IMPACT has provided nearly $2 billion in financing directed to benefit low-income families and communities. Projects include affordable multifamily housing, community healthcare facilities, childcare centers and other community facilities serving families and communities in 40 states plus the District of Columbia.

IMPACT was founded by a consortium of insurance companies to facilitate investments in projects that specifically benefit low-income families and communities.
